THE DESTINATIONS

A Land of Three Worlds

Arusha

Sitting beneath Mount Meru and within sight of Kilimanjaro, Arusha is Tanzania's safari capital and a key international diplomatic hub, hosting the East African Community headquarters. Its elevation of 1,400 metres keeps the climate cool and pleasant year-round, making it a gentle introduction to the country.

Karatu & the Ngorongoro Highlands

Beneath the extinct volcano of Ol Deani, Karatu marks the transition from the Manyara escarpment into cooler, greener highlands. Once a centre of coffee farming, it remains a popular overnight base for travellers heading to the Ngorongoro Crater.

Serengeti National Park

Tanzania's largest and most famous park, spanning nearly 14,763 square kilometres of open plains, acacia trees, and granite kopjes bordering Kenya's Maasai Mara. It hosts the annual wildebeest migration and reliable year-round sightings of lion, elephant, giraffe, and cheetah, with hot-air balloon safaris offering a unique perspective over the plains.
